KBA RightSignature

RightSignature's KBA feature gives document senders the ability to enable knowledge-based authentication on a RightSignature document, effectively requiring the signers to verify their identity via a set of personal questions about the signer's identity before access to the document itself is granted.

Kurzman, Dempsey & Kowalker, LLP will use the KBA feature in RightSignature on all forms that have personal information (SS#). The KBA feature was developed to support the identity verification requirements of the IRS guidelines on collecting electronic signatures on Forms 8878 and 8879.

RightSignature

Kurzman, Dempsey & Kowalker, LLP will use RightSignature with KBA disabled for Engagement letters and any other form that does not have personal information.
